Neue Philharmonie München

Since it was founded in 2005, Neue Philharmonie München has grown into an international orchestra of music students from all over Europe and beyond. Supporting young people who love music, with guidance from experienced teachers and professional musicians, is at the heart of the Musikwerkstatt Jugend e.V.

Neue Philharmonie München performs regularly in the Herkulessaal of the Munich Residenz, the Kultursaal Sillian (Austria), the Stadtsaal Fürstenfeldbruck, the Loisachhalle Wolfratshausen and the Stadthalle Kassel. In March 2020 the orchestra celebrated its 15th anniversary with three large-scale jubilee concerts, and in March 2025 it turned 20.

Concert tours have taken Neue Philharmonie München to Italy, France, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Austria, Azerbaijan and China. Under its principal conductor Fuad Ibrahimov (also principal conductor of the Azerbaijan State Symphony Orchestra and the Baku Chamber Orchestra), the orchestra has performed in Baku, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Beijing, among other places.

The orchestra is coached by members of the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra and the Bavarian State Orchestra, together with experienced teachers from well-known European music universities.

Short version

Neue Philharmonie München (NPhM) is an international symphony orchestra of music students. The NPhM performs regularly in the Herkulessaal of the Munich Residenz and gives numerous guest concerts in Germany and abroad. In 2025 the NPhM celebrated its 20th anniversary. It has performed in Shanghai, Beijing, Hong Kong, Baku and Rome. In 2015, 2016 and 2017 it was the festival orchestra at the Passionstheater Oberammergau, playing “Nabucco” and “The Flying Dutchman” (directed by Christian Stückl). The NPhM is coached by members of the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra and the Bavarian State Orchestra and by experienced teachers from renowned music universities in Germany and Europe.
